Guest Speaker: Dr. Richard Hallion China's Rise as an Aerospace Nation

Abstract

Dr Hallion, aka Dr. Hypersonic, will present his views on China's rise as an aerospace nation. The rise of China as a major regional air and space power has been one of global aerospace's most significant developments over the last two decades. This talk traces the development of aeronautics and astronautics in China from antiquity to the present, showing the role of both indigenous Chinese development, foreign influences, and the political-military-commercial environment that has shaped China's choices and ability to pursue its own air and space future.

Background

Dr. Richard P. Hallion is an internationally recognized aerospace historian who has written over a dozen works on the history of flight, and military and civil aviation. Dr. Hallion received a BA in 1970 and a Ph.D in 1975, both from University of Maryland. He is a former Smithsonian curator and a retired Air Force senior executive. Since leaving federal service Richard has been a Senior Consultant, Science and Technology Policy Institute of the Institute for Defense Analyses; a Research Associate in Aeronautics at the National Air and Space Museum, Smithsonian Institution; and a member of the Board of Trustees, Florida Polytechnic University, Lakeland, Florida. Dr. Hallion is a Fellow of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, the Royal Aeronautical Society, and the Royal Historical Society. He is also a member of the Air Force Association among other organizations.
