Commander, USAF F-35A Demonstration Team

An Inside Look at the F-35A

Please join us this month when Captain Kristin “Beo” Wolfe, commander and demonstration pilot for the U.S. Air Force F-35A Demonstration Team, gives us an inside look at this unmatched fifth generation fighter. The F-35A Lightning II is without question the most capable multirole fighter aircraft in the world, combining stealth, sensor fusion, and unmatched situational awareness. Currently operational or scheduled for operation with the U.S. and a dozen allied nations, the F-35 will be the backbone of these air forces for decades to come.

Capt Wolfe is a 2011 graduate of the University of Alabama with a B.S. in Chemical Engineering. Prior to her current assignment she was an instructor in the F-22 Raptor, the only other operational fifth generation fighter. Be sure to take this opportunity to hear what it takes to fly these two amazing aircraft, along with how Capt Wolfe achieved her dream of becoming a fighter pilot.
